PROFILE

Dané is an endlessly curious people-lover and growth-seeker who uses her drive to help others develop themselves in the ways they desire. An experienced coach, facilitator, and learning experience designer, Dané works with individuals and organizations to inspire the development of meaningful and fulfilling workplace cultures.

Dané began her career in hospitality, but her proclivity to challenge the status quo led her to work in the innovation sector of a health system. In 2014, she completed a leadership-focused MBA and began teaching management courses at Bradley University. She now aims to create impact on how individuals experience work (and life) through organizational development efforts, beginning with the self-development of a company's team members, and through 1:1 coaching with growth-oriented individuals.

It is Dané's mission to engage with people in a way that inspires a sense of limitless possibility and a desire for meaningful personal growth.
