PROFILE

Julia's expertise as a coach lies in her work with expatriates who are on international assignments. She helps them manage cross-cultural differences and be themselves. She supports them in becoming the best leaders they can be - even in an environment and work culture that is out of their comfort zone.

Julia connects easily with new managers who are in a leadership role for the first time. They explore how to create their identity as a leader in a career they love.

Through her storytelling, coaching tools, and exercises, Julia helps leaders to gain insights into their authentic selves. They leverage their insights to create organizations and organizational cultures that thrive and value the potential of every human. She works exceptionally well in the pharmaceutical, chemical, technology, and science-driven industries as well as in creative industries and companies that are operating on an international level.

Julia is fluent in both German and English.
